

DIRECTIONS

Wash and towel dry hair. Apply styling spray and root booster of your choice.

Step 1: Attach a brush head to the easy release brush handle. Stand the remaining rollers on end in a convenient to reach location.

Step 2: Blow dry hair until about 90% dry. With a brush head attached to the handle use Click n Curl as you would a round brush to direct, brush and style your hair while using the blow dryer.

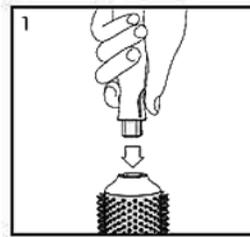

Step 3: Wrap a section of hair around the brush barrel starting from the end and wrapping down toward the roots. Use blow dryer as a heat source to heat the ceramic brush head. Wrap tight to the scalp and set the roller securely in place by giving it a little shake back and forth against the scalp. Press the release button on the brush handle and leave the roller in place.

Step 4: Repeat with next section of hair, leaving each roller in place. Dry hair completely.

Step 5: Allow the hair to set and cool. Remove the barrel rollers by unrolling each one up and out slowly.

Complete styling as desired.

Warning: Ceramic/aluminum barrels may be hot during use with a blow dryer. Avoid resting a heated brush barrel against skin. Allow to cool before handling.
Warning: When using Click n Curl, do not place hair dryer directly on the brush barrel, brush bristles or the hair. This could result in damage to the brush and/or the hair. The heat source should be a minimum of 2 inches / 5 cm away from the brush barrel and remain in constant motion to avoid excessive, constant, direct and prolonged heat on the hair.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

The rollers don't stay in my hair. What's the trick?

Like any new styling tool, it might take a couple of tries to get the results right for you. Here are a few tips that might help.

1. Add a little "shake" just before releasing the roller. In order for the roller to stay in place securely, it must rest against the scalp so make sure you feel the bristles on your scalp before releasing the roller. Also, and here's the important part, to set the roller securely, just before releasing the barrel from the handle, give it a little shake back and forth (horizontally) against your scalp. This will set the roller in place.
2. Always roll your hair down to your scalp or in to your scalp but not up. Pull the sections of hair up and then roll it onto the brush head by rolling it down to the scalp or pull sections out and roll in to the scalp. It doesn't work as well, nor do you get the body at the roots, if you pull the hair down and roll up to the scalp.
3. If you are rolling a section of hair on the crown of your head spanning your part (instead on each side of your part), you may need a clip to hold the first one in place. It usually stays as long as you set the roller (see #1) and are looking forward, but if you look down that roller may fall out.
4. Try smaller sections. You might be trying to roll too much hair.

Won't the rollers get stuck in my hair?

No, they really don't. The short, soft bristles are designed to minimize tangling. Here are a few more tips to minimize tangling:

1. UNROLL the roller in an UP and OUT direction instead of pulling it down.
2. Make sure your hair is dry and the rollers have cooled.

Do you think one set is enough for my hair? Seems like I would need more.

Five rollers is great for setting the crown of your head which is where you mostly want/need the volume. But if you want to set your whole head, you have a couple of options.

1. Set one section of hair and then move the rollers. The barrels cool fast. By the time you set the last roller, the first one will most likely be cool and you can move it to the next section of hair. OR
2. Add-on sets of four rollers are available in all three sizes at www.click-n-curl.com

It's too hard to dry and brush/roll my hair at the same time. Now what?

It does take practice. Don't give up. In the meantime, dry your hair like you usually do until it's about 90-95% dry. Then put the dryer down and place the rollers where you want them. Next, finish drying your hair. Be sure to heat each roller with a long shot of hot air from the dryer and then let them cool. You'll get the same results.

How long does it take for the rollers to cool? How long should I leave the rollers in my hair?

The ceramic coated aluminum barrels heat fast and cool fast. Really it just takes a minute. By the time you have the last roller set, the first one will most likely be cool. However, the longer you leave them in the place the better results.
